GLOSSY BUCKET CHAIR The only chair we have that goes with the scrap table is the oak chair made of scrap wood. It's far more comfortable than you might think, but is not particularly luxurious and goes with the table a little too well. So I had been looking for a chair for some time that was totally different, yet would still go together well with the table. I eventually came up with a design involving an upholstery idea I had had for a while and the nickel-plated reissue of the glossy arm chair. In addition to the chair in its current design, we are also going to produce a tub chair with armrests and an office version. Strangely enough, we have not yet decided whether it is or will become an attractive product, but the overall look and details are engaging, almost objectionable, and therefore of interest to us.
