TIM VAN DE WEERD

Designer Tim van de Weerd is specialised in bringing together the unexpected and the familiar. A design should be accessible and distinctive. Every piece of furniture or object must evoke the imagination and play with expectations; the imagery must always be recognizable and surprising.

All of Tim's designs have an openness. They are straightforward and sincere, simple and elegant. And therefore highly accessible. At the same time they are characterised by a fine, subtle tension. This comes from playing with imagination, sophisticated details and the unexpected use of materials. The design keeps fascinating: it intrigues and lingers.

The Monstera-plant pot - with its ornate roots - is an extension of the plant, rather than a separate object (which is also why the pots bear a botanical name). The design casts a new light on the otherwise rigid and oppressive traditional plant pot.

The fragile-looking legs of all three plant pots are made of steel bars. These are bent by hand to form the “roots” and moulded with industrial two-component clay. This approach gives the Monstera design its fragile look, yet it is unexpectedly strong and stable because of the chosen elaboration.
